

The Swedish Textile Initiative for Climate Action

STICA Progress Report 2021

Event Invitation

February 11, 2021, 10-11CET

Climate Action - The Countdown Continues: Webinar during Stockholm Fashion Week

The clock is ticking... How will Sweden's apparel & textiles industry halve its emissions by 2030?

In 2019 The Swedish Textile Initiative for Climate Action (STICA) was launched to support the Nordic apparel and textiles industry to reduce its climate impacts in line with a 1.5°C warming pathway, while strengthening its global competitiveness. So now it's time for a progress report. During this webinar STICA will summarise the steps being taken by STICA member companies, and, together with industry stakeholders, discuss what it will take for the Swedish apparel and textiles industry to halve its greenhouse gas emissions by 2030 while also leading the world in climate action.

The webinar will be shown live on the Stockholm Fashion Week (SFW) website on Thursday, February 11, 2021, 10-11CET. The session is free for all to attend. You don't need to register in advance. On Thursday, click here to watch the STICA webinar. An on-demand version will be available soon after the event.

Listen to industry, government, research, and NGO representatives, including:

Åsa Andersson, Sustainability & Quality Manager, Peak Performance

Eva Eiderström, Director Department of Ecolabelling and Green Consumption, The Swedish Society for Nature Conservation

Kim Hellström, Strategy Lead, CSR, H&M Group

Magnus Nikkarinen, Senior Policy Director - Sustainability, Swedish Trade Federation

Sandra Roos, Head of Sustainability, KappAhl

Michael Schragger, Initiative Director, STICA

Cecilia Tall, Secretary-General, TEKO

STICA